The Society very much welcomes this new policy which is urgently needed to help combat the rapid increase in health problems, particularly mental health. However as mentioned in earlier responses this is a complex problem which cannot be addressed solely by improvements to the built and green environment. Experience in Addingham is that building “community” is essential to health and wellbeing. This is alluded to in paragraphs 3.18.6,3.18.8 and 3.18.9 (page46). It also considers a requirement on developers to undertake “Health Impact Assessments” as essential in instilling a sense of social responsibility.

Please continue your comments on the next page.
